GRADUATE SUMMER STUDY ABROAD PROGRAM

This program, for students and practitioners studying higher education/college student personnel, is an opportunity to develop an understanding of the structures and approaches to higher education and student affairs utilized in Ireland and Northern Ireland, sites rich in culture and faith traditions. Participants should be knowledgeable of student learning/development theories and the history, philosophy, and administration of American colleges and universities.

Students will engage with faculty, staff, and students working in various roles and institutional types in Ireland's higher education system to learn their perspectives and practices. The goal of this program is to enhance participants' global understanding, broaden their points-of-view about how higher education may serve its various constituents, and help prepare them to address the diverse needs of international learners and students studying abroad.
